SELECTED PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE DETAILS:

The Praxis Consulting Group

2003-present

Senior Associate and Executive Director

In addition to current faculty positions, I conduct research, business development, board training, diversity training, and strategic planning. I am the training, facilitation, and organizational development specialist for academic institutions and international non-profit organizations. I provide capacity building for staff, and coaching and mentoring for faculty and program managers. I conduct research and evaluations for programs in environment, sustainable agriculture, and natural resource management, education, gender, health, girl children, orphans and vulnerable children. I write and prepare donor and grant reports for clients. Some of my clients include the Women's Initiatives for Gender Justice, the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, The University of the Witwatersrand, Organization for Tropical Studies – Duke University, Margaret Sanger Center International, The Oprah Winfrey Foundation and Angel Network, Nelson Mandela Children's Fund, Debt/Aid/Trade/Africa, UNHCR, USAID, World Bank, The Global Fund for AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, Social Marketing Company/Bangladesh, AC Nielsen Company, Northeast Farm Access, Wildseed Farm, Avena Botanicals, and The Herbal Classroom. I travel extensively, in the US and internationally, and I have lived and/or worked in all global regions.

Rhode Island School of Design

2008-2011

Executive Director, Office of International Programs

I provided supervision for SEVIS, and international student services and acted as PDSO and ARO. My office had a caseload of over 600 international students. I was responsible for programming, orientation, and academic advising for international students. I provided supervision for all international education including study abroad, the European Honors Programs based in Rome, and short-term faculty-led travel courses and I traveled in order to prepare and supervise these courses. My office sent approximately 250 students abroad per year and received at least 50 exchange students. I was responsible for assisting all fine arts, design, and liberal arts faculty with planning and program development for international education including extensive international travel to set up and monitor programs. I was responsible for strategic planning, budgeting, data collection, monitoring, reporting, and evaluation for campus internationalization efforts. I received and oriented international visiting academics. As a guest faculty member of the Liberal Arts department I lectured undergraduate and graduate students at Brown and RISD in international development, design for development, and international affairs. I was the primary liaison with the office of Public Engagement, Office of Multicultural Affairs, Office of Student Services on multiculturalism and international issues. I was an active member of the Diversity Task Force, RISD Respond Design, and Faculty Green Group.

The University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg

2000-2006

Senior Lecturer and Program Manager, School of Commerce, Economics and Business

I lectured undergraduate and graduate South African and international students in management, human resource management, cultural competency, labor law, strategic management, entrepreneurship, development economics (rural and urban), democracy and governance, environmental studies, social anthropology, HIV/AIDS, and gender. I was the program manager for faculty development training for all black and female faculty, staff, and students in the university. I conducted research on HIV/AIDS, vulnerable children, gender, community natural resource management, democracy, social justice, reconciliation, transformation, and equity issues and was a founding member and member of the Steering Committee of the University's AIDS Research Institute. I was the founder and director of the Office of Community Service Partnerships for the School of Economic and Business Sciences, an innovative academic/community/private sector development initiative. I lectured on social justice leadership and conducted conflict resolution training for students. I was the program manager and fundraiser for applied research projects dealing with HIV/AIDS, poverty, vulnerable children, secondary school curriculum development, community environmental awareness, and social entrepreneurship. I developed the university's community partnerships including coordination of international service learning courses that engaged U.S. undergraduate and graduate college students in the fields of community ecotourism, urban and rural development, community environmental management, community health, and handicrafts business development. I managed these development projects and activities in Soweto, Johannesburg, and in the communities surrounding Wits Rural Facility in Kruger Park, Limpopo Province, South Africa. I became, and remain, a South African permanent resident.

CUSO, Canada

1999-2000

Regional Director of East and Southern Africa

I provided technical assistance to all in-country offices and supervised the Country Directors and their staff for all development programs. I provided fundraising, budget, financial, and program oversight and support to headquarters in Ottawa. I designed and facilitated staff development and training. I was the regional organizational development and capacity building specialist and provided program support for regional offices. I was responsible for all regional budget, administration, and fundraising activities. Programs covered all development sectors including environment, gender, peace building, microeconomics, and health.
