Rhode Island School of Design offers a variety of financial aid options. RISD Scholarships and federal aid are given as a result of students and parents filling out the online FAFSA form. For new incoming freshman and transfers, the FAFSA and the CSS Profile are required.

In an attempt to assist with additional options to supplement any aid we may be able to offer students, we have provided this list of outside resources to help you start a search for other sources of aid. We do not endorse or guarantee the results of using this information and are not associated with any of the organizations listed in this document. We are providing this document as a service to students; any relationship you create with the organizations listed will be between you and the company or organization.

Where to Look:

- ~ Ask your high school counselor or college career center about local and national scholarships.
- ~ Check out the college section of your public library. (Start by looking for the College Board Scholarship Handbook)
- ~ Look into religious, community service, fraternal, military, union, or professional organizations with which you or your parents are associated.
- ~ Ask your parents to check with their employers.
- ~ Check to see if your state offers scholarship/grant programs for its residents (especially if you are planning to attend school in your home state)
- ~ Access your college's website, catalog, and financial aid office to find out what kind of scholarships are offered.
- ~ Try using a free online scholarship search to generate a list of scholarships you may be eligible to receive.

Tips for Scholarship Success:

- ~ Start your research early. (Some scholarships deadlines are in early fall of senior year)
- ~ Read eligibility requirements carefully.
- ~ Organize your scholarship materials. Try keeping a separate file for each scholarship and file by application date.
- ~ Keep track of application deadlines and follow-up appointments.
- ~ Have a parent, teacher, or friend proofread your application.
- ~ Check to make sure you haven't left sections of the application blank.
- ~ Follow application instructions. Don't go over the length limit for essays and resist sending supporting materials that are not requested.
- ~ Make your application legible.
- ~ Make copies of everything you send.
- ~ Get your applications in early to avoid missing deadlines.
- ~ Consider using certified mail or return receipt.

Beware of Scholarship Scams

PHEAA recommends families beware of financial aid offers. Consumers lose millions of dollars in scholarship scams each year.

For more information please visit: <http://www.pheaa.org/>

Be suspect of scholarship services who say or do any of the following:

~ “The scholarship is guaranteed or your money back.” No one can guarantee that they’ll get you a grant or a scholarship. Refund guarantees often have strings attached.

~ “You can’t get this information anywhere else.” There are many free ways to look for scholarships. Check out the resources yourself before you consider paying someone.

~ “Your credit card or bank account number is needed to hold this scholarship.” This may be a setup for an unauthorized withdrawal from your account.

~ “This scholarship will cost money.” Don’t pay anyone who is “holding” a grant for you.

~ “You’ve been selected” or “You’re a finalist” in a contest you never entered. Make sure the program is legitimate before doing anything.
